REVERIE

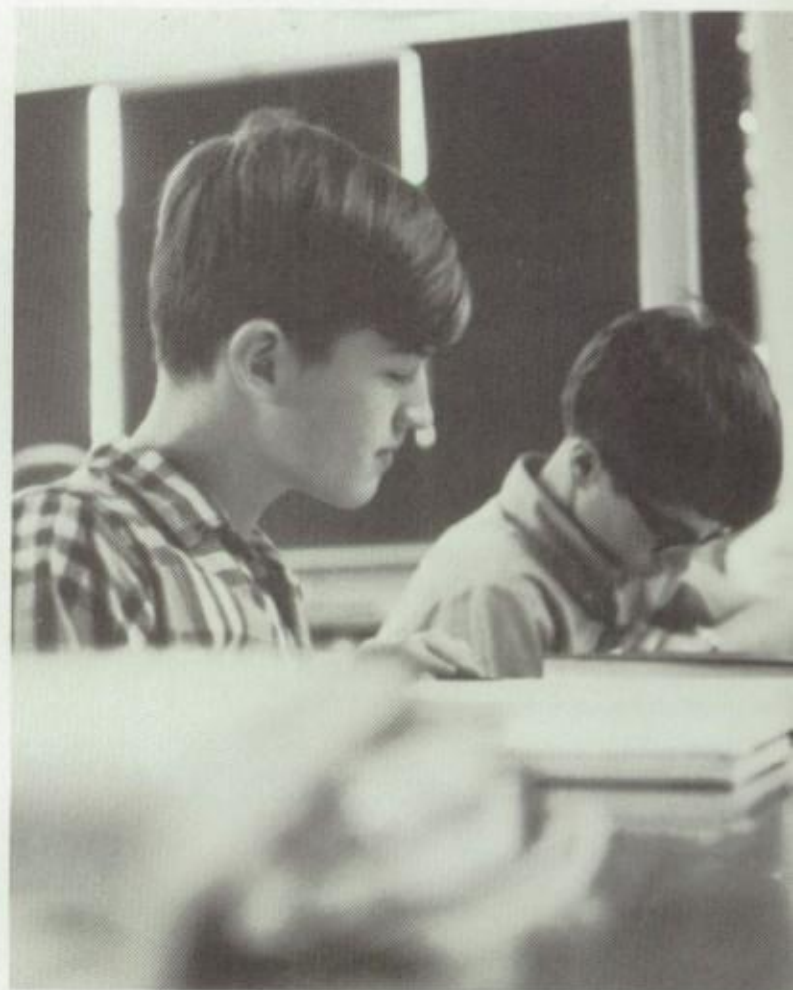

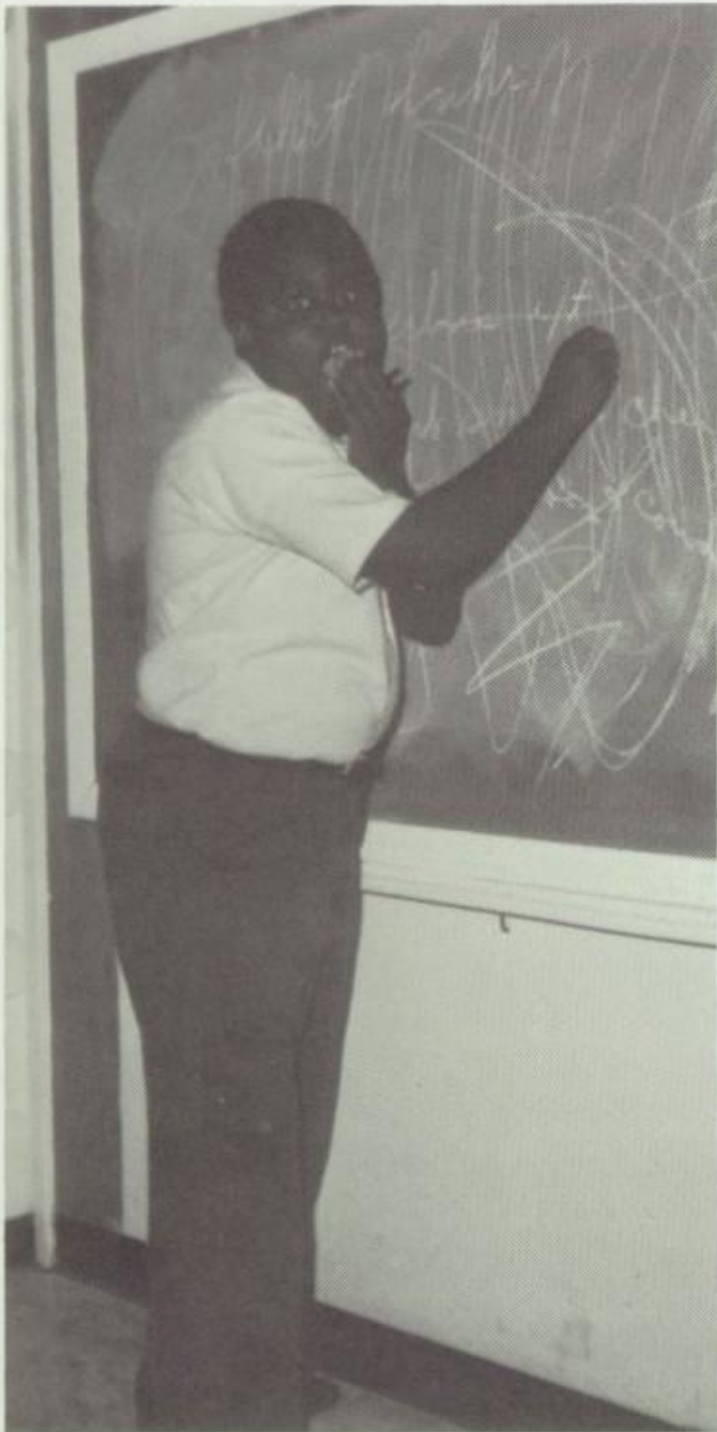

To everything there is a season,
and a time for every purpose
under the heavens.
Ecclesiastes 3:11

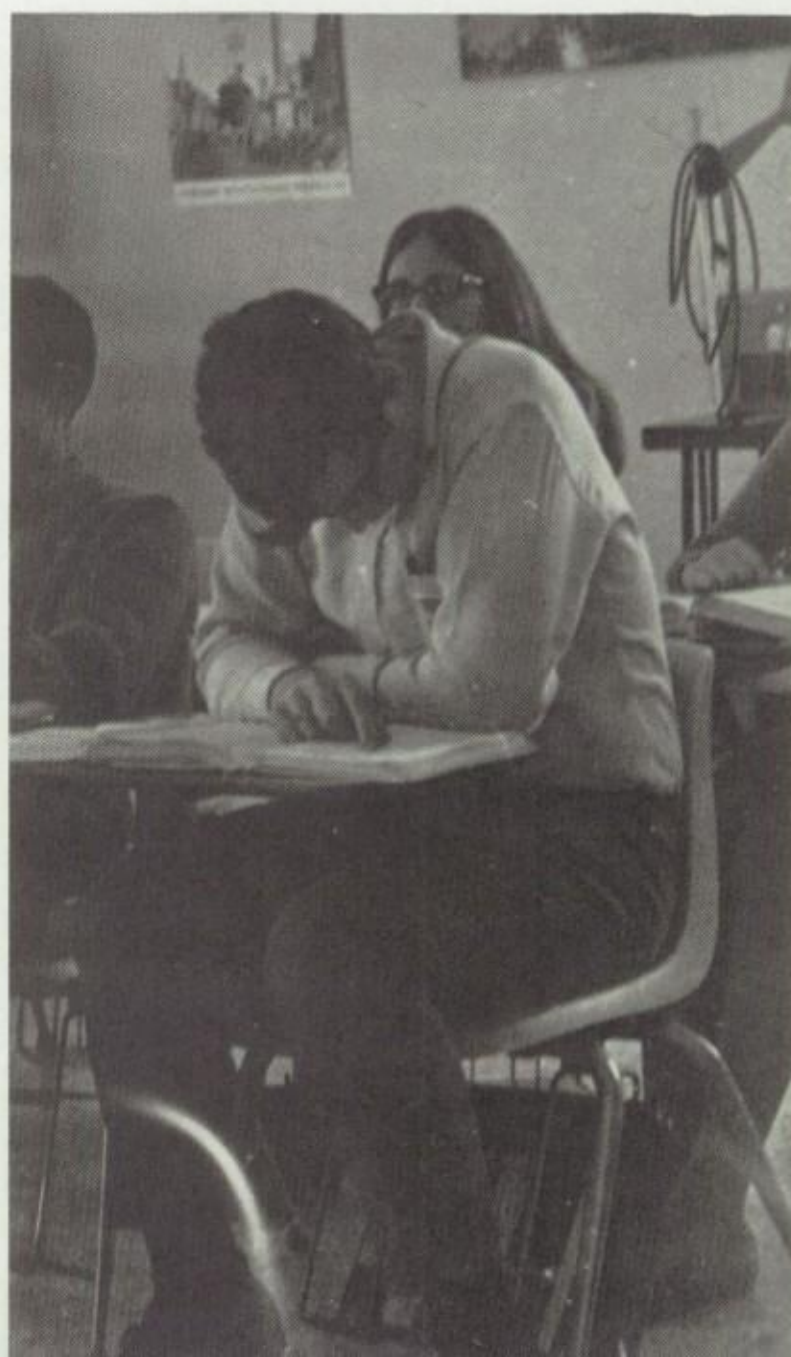

The year of 1970,
All its seconds, minutes, hours,
All were important;
All combined to provide a time
for everything . . .

A time for developing oneself . . .
developing our abilities
and seeing results;
developing ourselves to prepare for life . . .

A time for realization . . .
wondering why we are,
realizing we are persons,
each one important.

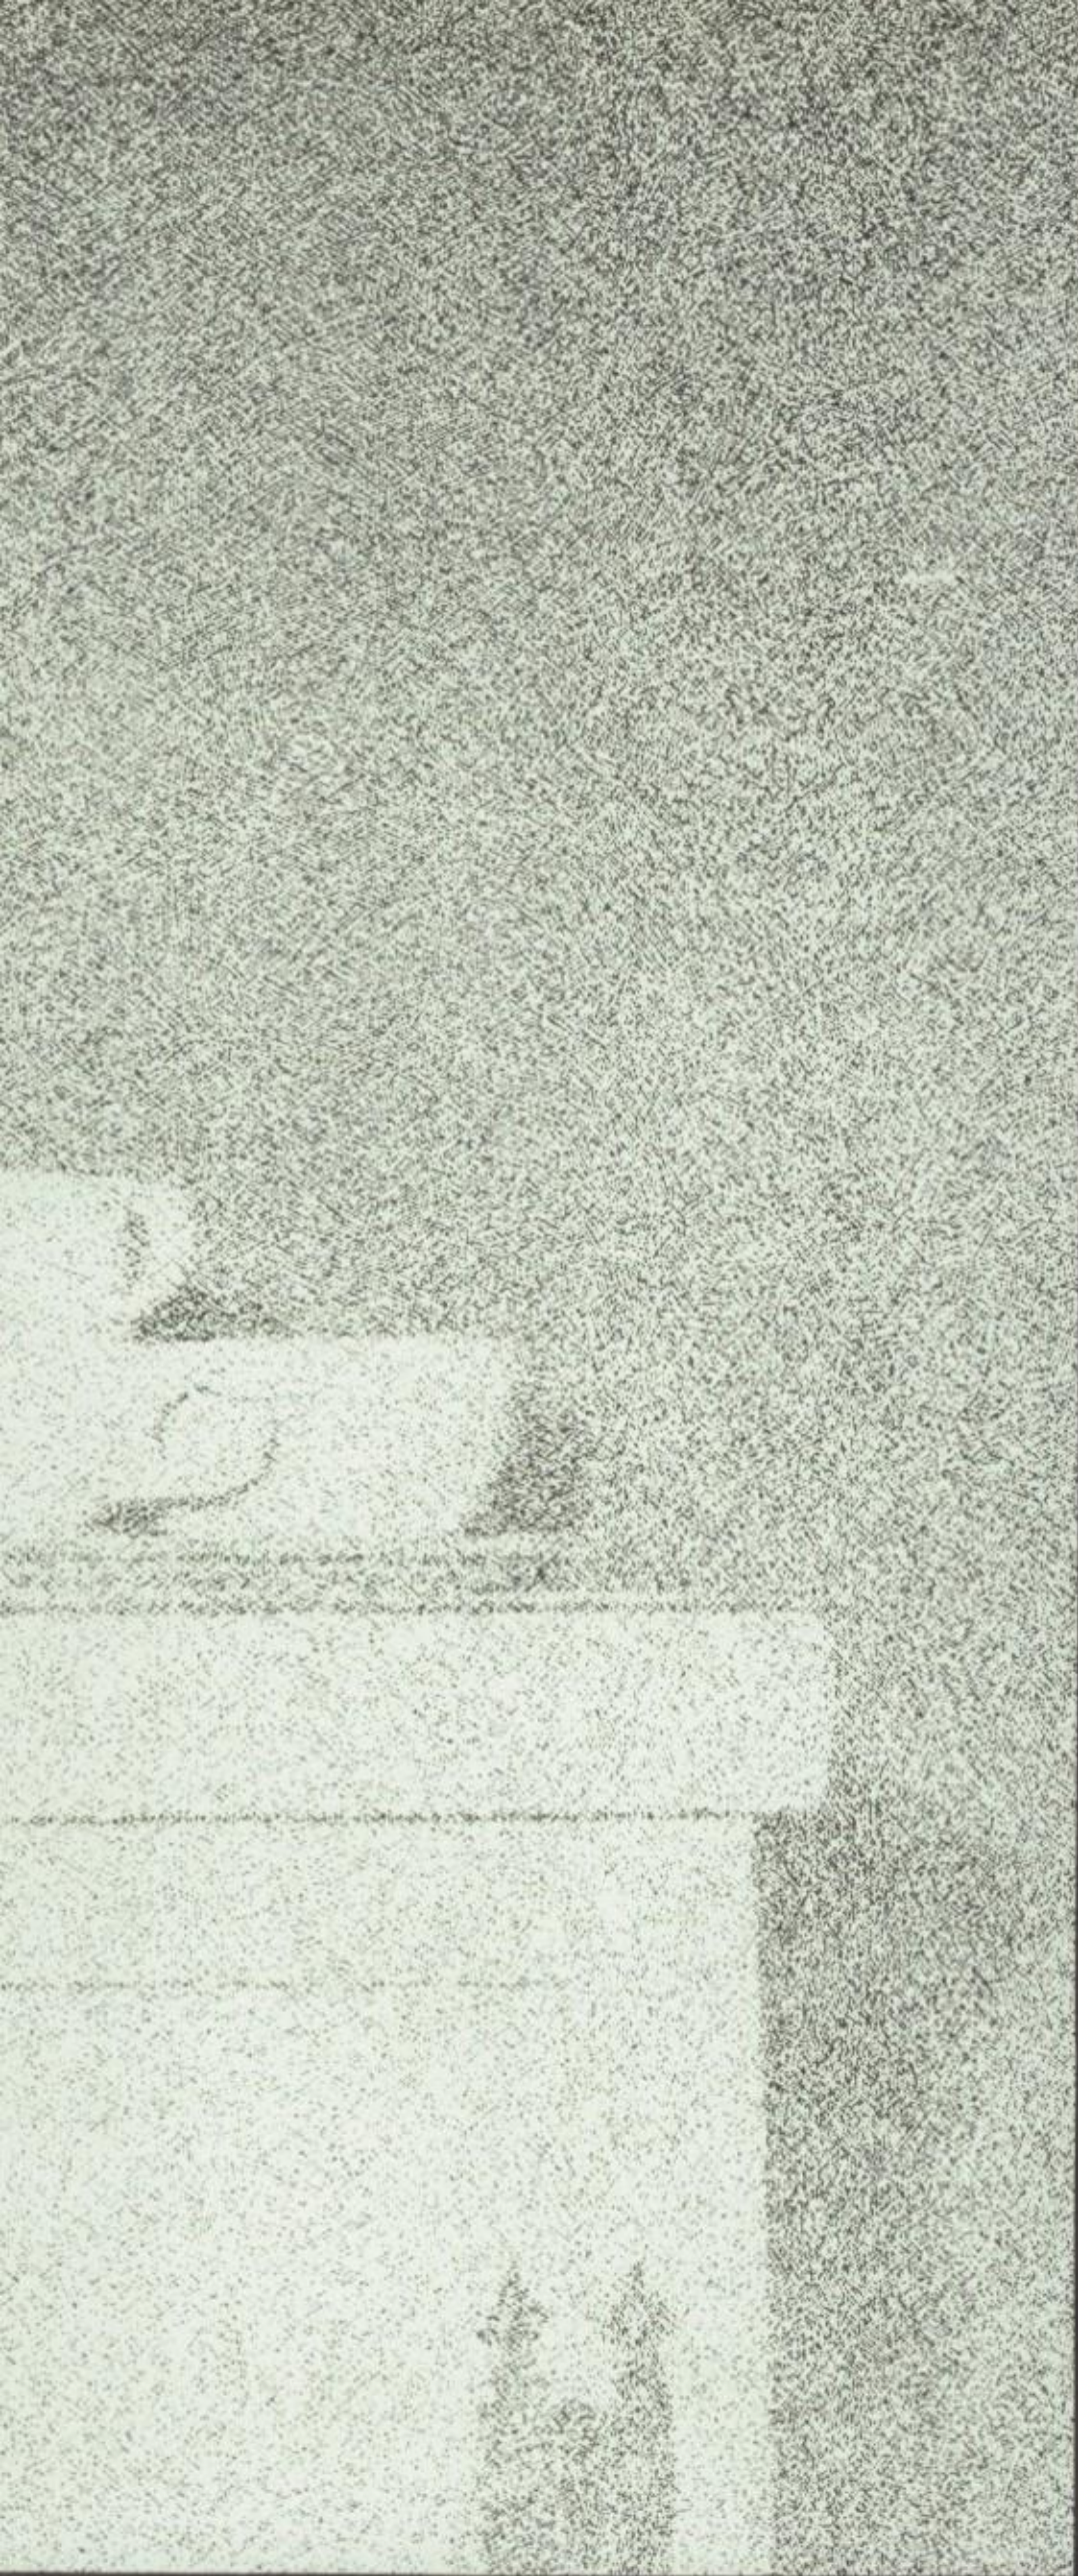

A time for friendship . . .
friendship is to have someone nearby
when you need someone most . . .
sharing and crying and laughing and caring.

A time for searching . . .
searching for answers
and asking why? why? . . .
and knowing down deep that the answer is God.

Be silent and safe.

Sheldon Yoder
Russell Yoder

Dimples, smiles, and curly hair; what more could a fair maid ask?

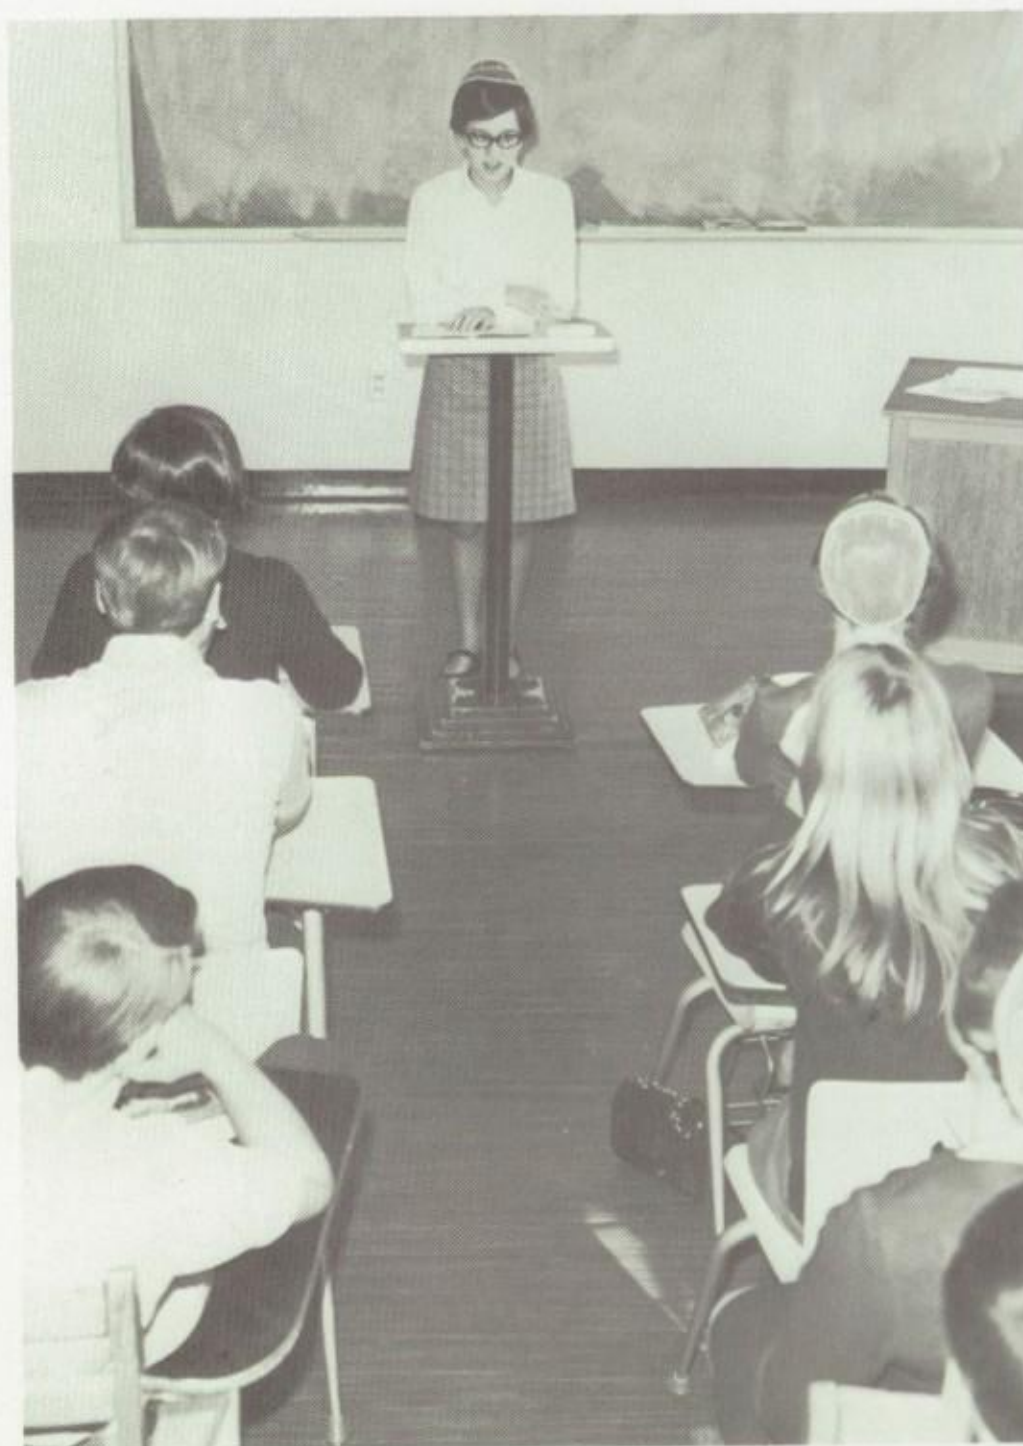

ACADEMICS

Reading a play in junior English

English class . . .
 a small taste of Shakespeare,
 reaching into well-known novels
 and seeing ourselves in them,
 reading plays and understanding
 people,
 giving oral book reports
 added a shaky dimension.
 English class was rewarding.

Languages

Janice Miller giving a book report

Students listening to German tapes

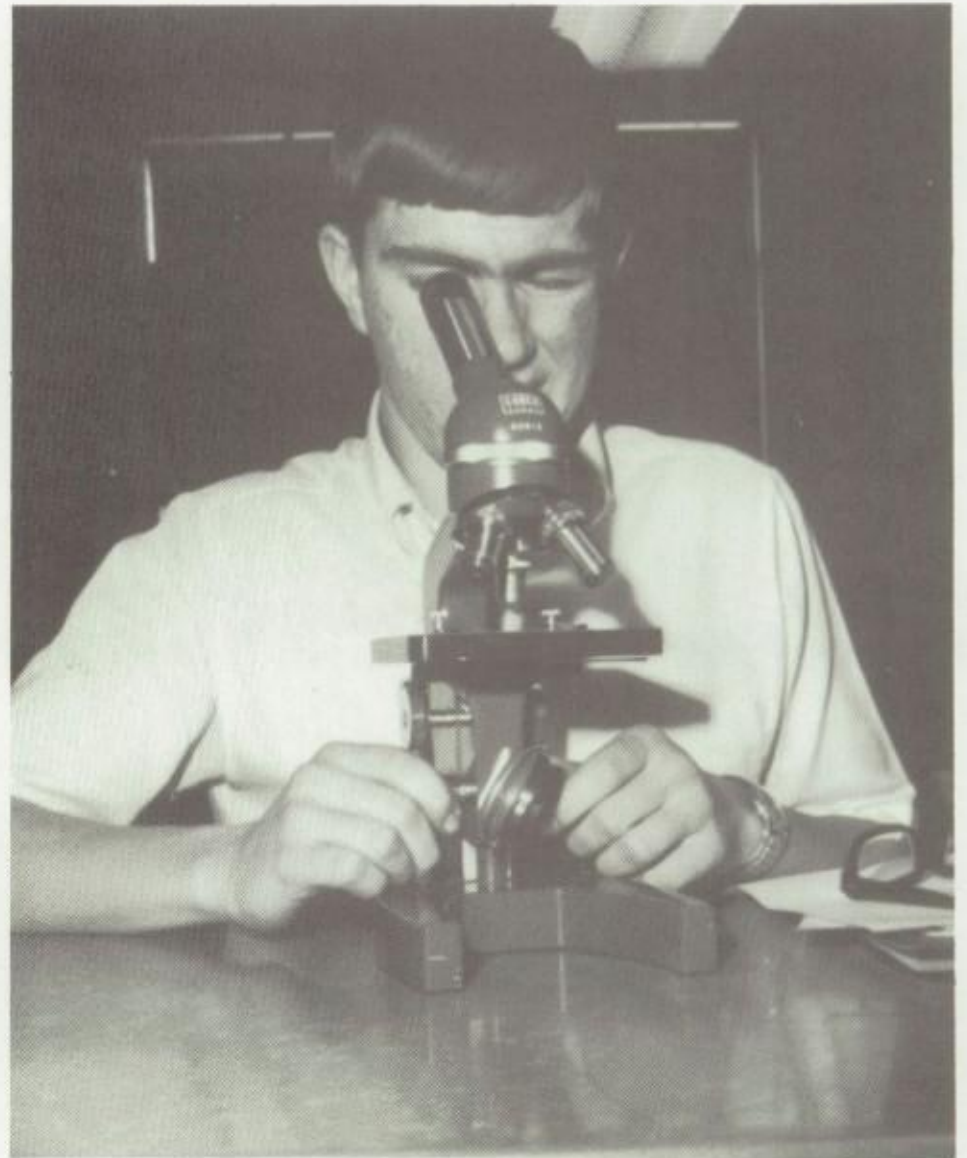

German class . . .
consisted, this year, of three levels,
long weeks choosing
der, die, or das
where "the" used to be sufficient,
enjoying German songs and customs
under Mrs. Tiessen's experienced guidance.
German class was satisfying.
Spanish class . . .

watching Spanish films and trying to understand,
looking at Mr. Wyse's
pictures of Nicaragua,
listening to his experiences
in Central America . . .
and learning, reading dialogues,
making up conversations.
Spanish class was educational.

Natural Sciences

Warren A. Miller, Advanced Biology

Kathy Brenneman, Bonnie Marner, Chemistry

Mr. King, Ken Bunch, Kathy Brenneman

Duane Gugel, Tim Histan, Physical Science

Biology, chemistry, and physics—
the tough ones!

In biology freshmen discovered
what makes them tick.

Backfiring experiments and Mr. King's side remarks made the chemistry hour
seem shorter.

For those willing to dig deeper,
physics was offered
second semester.

Algebra I, David Gugel

Mathematics

Mr. King proves a theorem groping through a maze of theorems

equations postulates and square roots.

History discussion

Social Sciences

Seniors ponder their society.

We learned of people—
great people and powerful people.
People and dates and events and reasons
that made the world
as it is today.

Bible

Boyd Nelson, Mennonite Missions Representative

Four required semesters,
 Four varied semesters—Freshmen learn of Old Testament life and the promise of the Messiah.
 The life of Christ is explored by sophomores.
 Juniors learn to appreciate our heritage by studying church history
 from Pentecost through today.
 Seniors receive answers to today's problems by investigating Bible doctrine—
 Give us a well-rounded knowledge of the Bible.

Boyd Nelson drives home his point in Bible IV

Dean Swartzendruber

Mr. Blosser, Barb Hochstetler, Art class

Art, Typing

We developed our fingers as well as our minds.

In art

Mr. Blosser guided us in discovering creative beauty.

In typing

Mrs. Tiessen's speed tests trained our fingers and heightened our accuracy.

In industrial arts

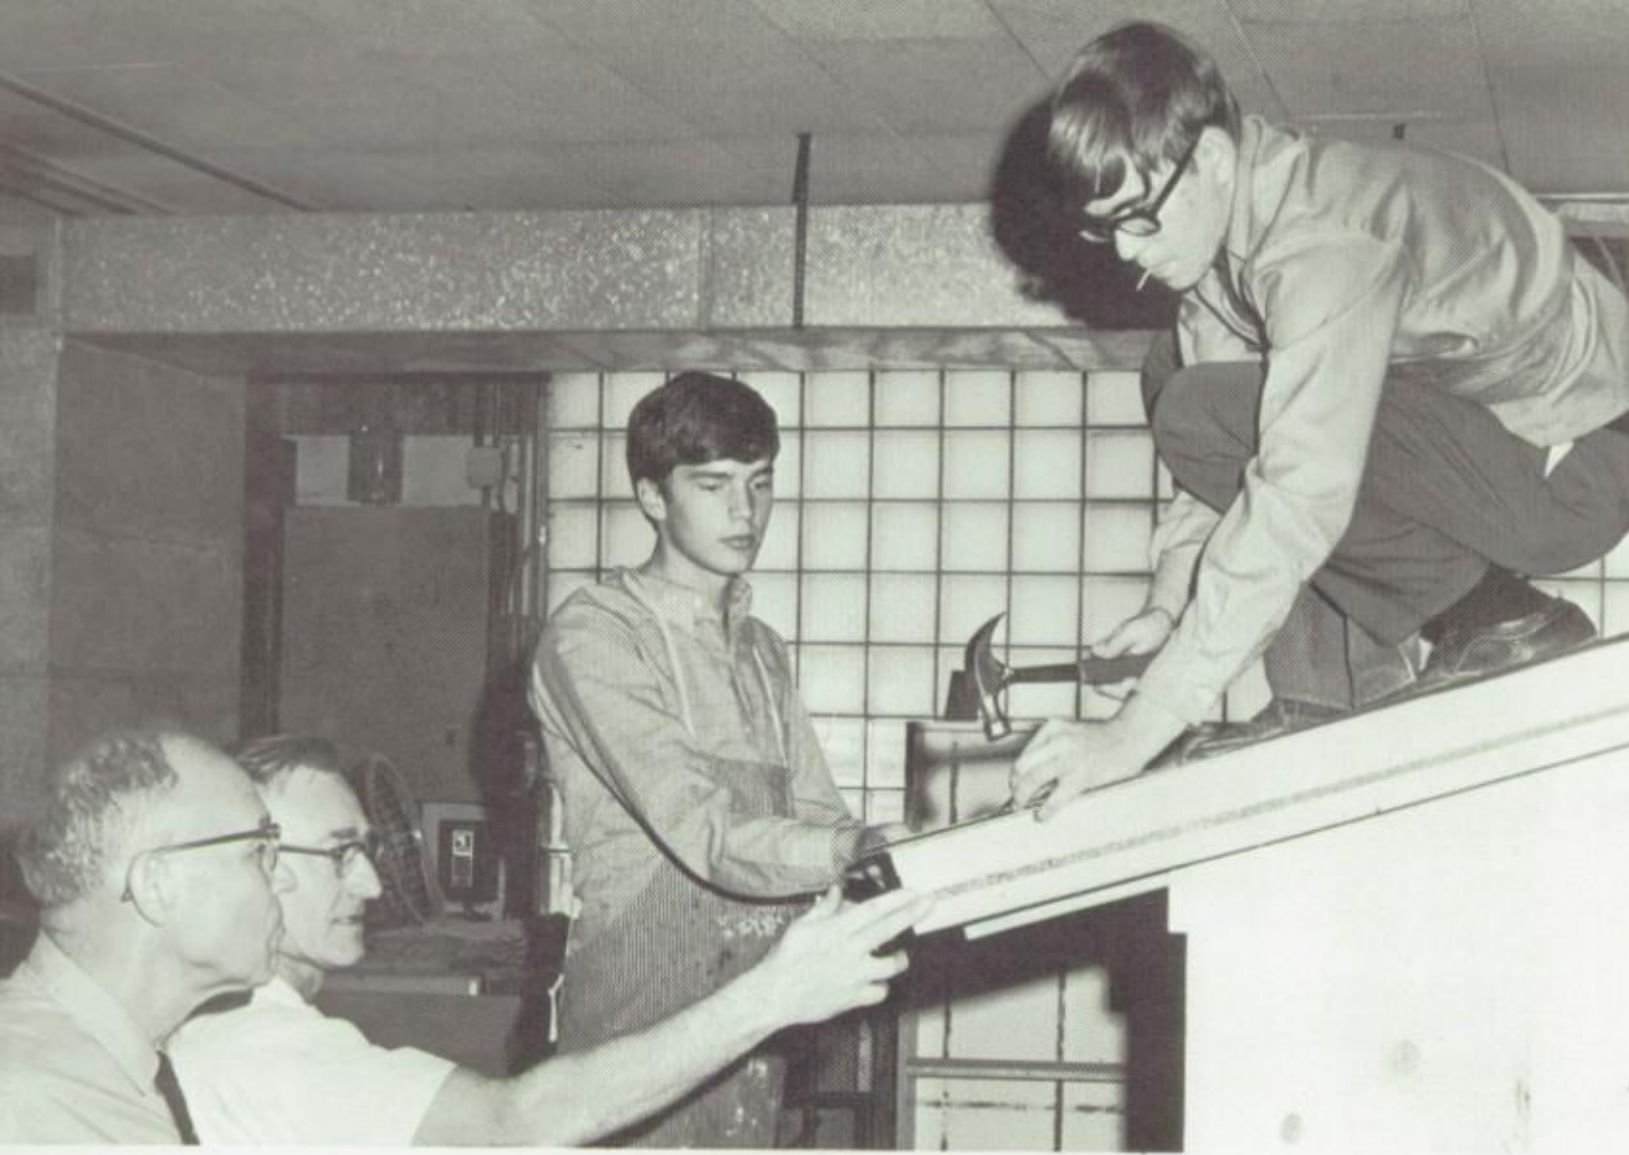

Mr. Schrock helped us master the use of tools.

In home economics

Miss Weaver taught us the arts of homemaking: sewing, decorating, cooking.

Mrs. Tiessen's typing students pick up speed.

Mr. Schrock teaches his students precision in Industrial Arts.

Industrial Arts, Home Economics

Mary Yoder gets help from Miss Weaver in Home Economics.

Separate P.E. teachers for guys
and girls became an actuality.
Some class periods were mixed producing more Sam-watching than Mary-watching.
We became adjusted to new teachers' varying whims:
Soccer became a sport;
Our long-hoped-for trampoline
became a useful reality.
P.E. five days a week . . .
. . . cut down on study halls;
. . . made even girls super-quick dressers;
. . . toned long-ignored muscles;
. . . actually got us in shape!

No more aching bodies on a hard bench—

STUCO bought us a soft sick-bed!

Mr. Blosser's chorus no longer competes with creaks and groans—

STUCO bought us new risers!

No more hopping on mother's bedsprings—

STUCO bought us a trampoline!

But, STUCO didn't buy these—we did!

Through STUCO-sponsored work-days we worked and earned these things.

STUCO provided fun.

Get-acquainted party with barking candy hunts;

Christmas banquet in candlelight; Fahrenheit 451 on film.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION OFFICERS: Dean Swartzendruber, advisor; Mary Freyenberger, president; Jim Brenneman, treasurer; Jane Hochstetler, secretary, Becky Wyse, vice president.

Young People's Christian Association . . .

An organization in which everyone is a member;
Hurried fifth period executive
meetings;
Sending gospel teams to Chicago and St. Louis to do good . . .
but we were the ones rewarded.
Sponsoring Ralf coming and Mike leaving . . .

Sheldon Yoder, layout editor; Julie Miller, assistant layout editor.

Reverie '70 meant

unsure summer planning brought into focus by six months of hard work.

Reverie '70 meant

learning discipline in order
to meet deadlines;
laughing too much;
becoming acquainted with Fred Stoeker;
throwing paper airplanes in
study hall;
going to a yearbook
convention;
discovering the personalities
of co-workers;
learning to work together
toward a goal.

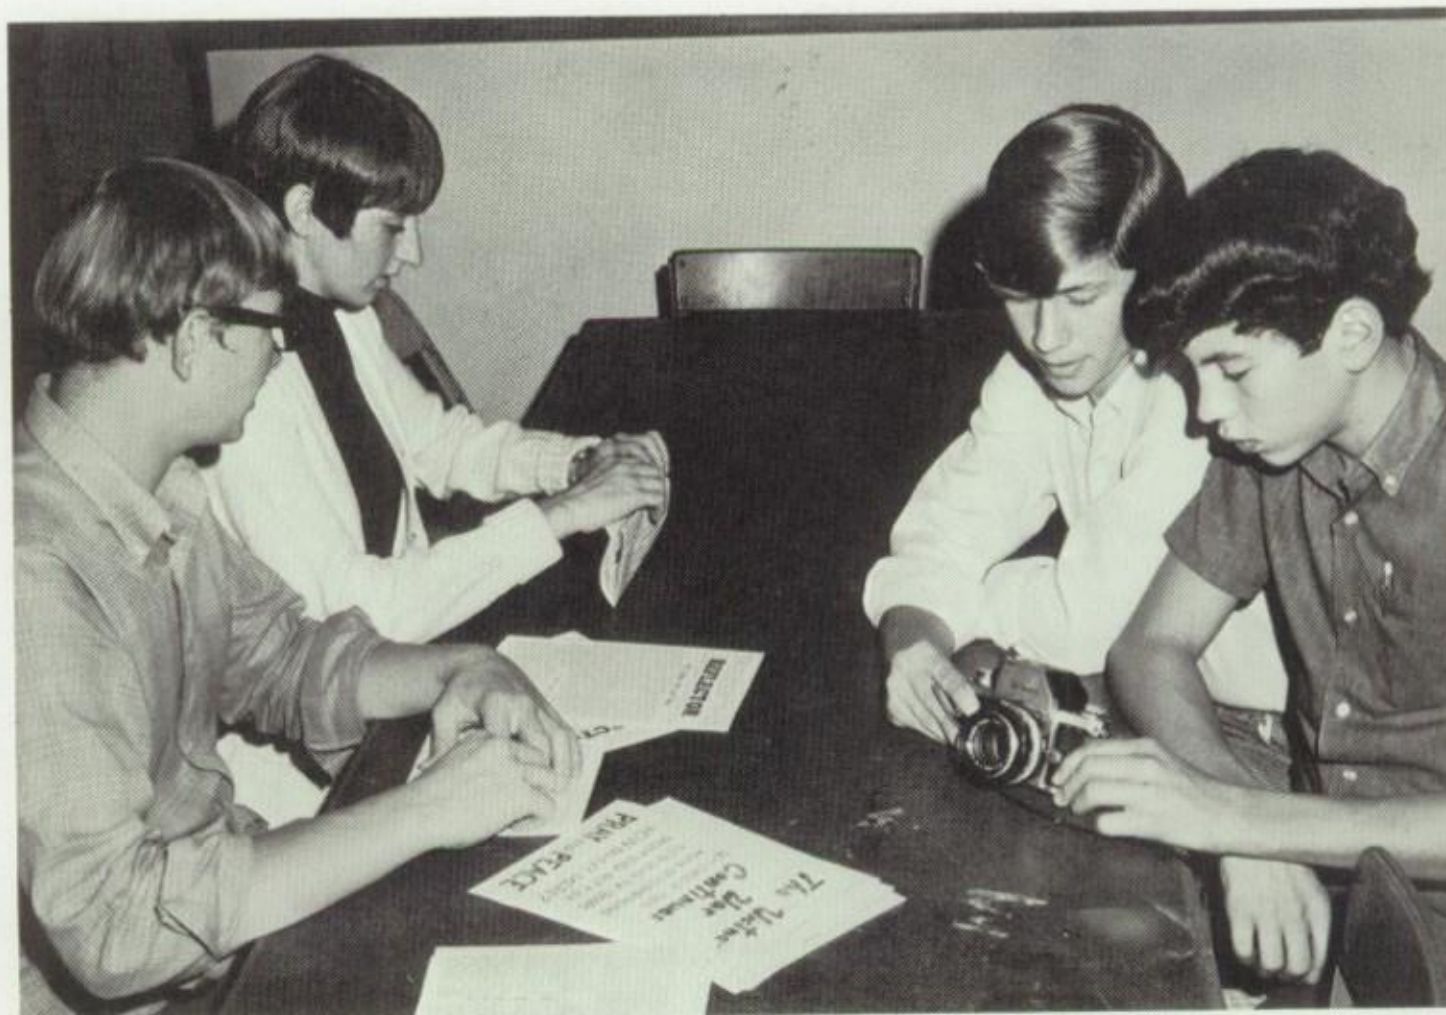

Reverie '70 was an experience.

Reflector

Phil Yoder, Jean Slaubaugh, business managers; Lynn Brenneman, Fred Swartzendruber, photographers.

Rosella Marner, proofreader; Mary Roth, Kris Brenneman, typists; Lois Ropp, proofreader.

Jane Hochstetler, Mike Brenneman

The Reflector is our monthly herald
to the community.
Lehman funnies and pizza
made long evenings of layout
more bearable.
Deciding who writes what,
reminding reporters of deadlines, and praying that pictures turn out kept the editors worried.
Folding, criticizing and finally handing out the finished product
drew the junior class closer together.

We donned our grubbies and boarded buses at 8:30 on the perfect fall morning of school day out—a refreshing break from classes. Palisades State Park provided a great place for hiking, football, running in the sand, and literally being free. The rapids were a great place to take time out for thought, quietness, meditation.

AN EXCITING NEW CONCEPT

Combined with a new emphasis on the role of the learner in the learning process.

More emphasis on learning by observation and experiment; self-evaluation and involvement in course planning.

A de-emphasis on strictly theoretical and factual aspects of learning; on semester exams.

All this in the context of a Christian environment with dedicated, experienced, competent teachers.

The preceding pages
have told the story
of our year.
We take this opportunity to thank the people who helped make Reverie 70
a reality.

- Fred Stoeker and American Yearbook Company
for their professional advice.
- Newcomer, King, and Gugel
for unlocking the school door
on cold winter nights.
- Mrs. Evelyn Miller
for all her helpful hints.
- Hilda and Dan
for their help with photography.
- Mr. Paul Miller
for checking over our mistakes and sharing his Christmas cheese with us.
- Miss Mary and Che Che
for making long evenings
not-so-long with pizza.
- Our parents who saw us through
icy roads and late hours
with patience.
- The student body of IMS
without whom this book would have been impossible.

This has been
the year of 1970.

All its seconds, minutes, hours—
all were important.

All combined to provide a time for everything.
